Something is out there. And the people live in constant fear.

But their biggest threat lies within their own village. Everyone and everything is dying, slowly and without hope of salvation. In a world where almost nothing is truth and isolation is the purest form of self-deception, the possibility of hope exists only in the heart and mind of a young woman who chooses to follow an unknown path in order to save everyone she knows and loves. Before long, she discovers that her most vital beliefs are based on a deception that will rock the foundation of her entire people. To save them, she must learn to open her heart and sacrifice...everything.

Reviews for The First

A truly gripping read... gorgeously presented through suspense and truly draws the reader in. —Amazon Customer

... a beautifully written novel, original, and a very enjoyable read. —Ella's Book Reviews

... a sumptuous blend of some familiar books—it has the feel of The Giver, plus a bit of Wool, all tied up with a very slight smidgen of The Hunger Games—yet in the end... an entity all its own.... —Imagination Ether Press

... ultimately, it was something very different and yet quite beautiful. —LizLovesBooks

... an interesting and original novel, despite early similarities to Shymalan's The Village... manages to give us something better and beyond a simplistic twist... a really well-written novel... that will leave you thinking. —
